WEBSITE OF THE WEEK: www.bne.catholic.net.au The Diocese of Brisbane started with the colony of Queensland in 1859. It then covered the whole of Queensland, a vast diocese with few people. The first bishop, James Quinn, organised an immigration scheme which brought thousands of Irish, establishing the style of the Church for a century. This website has been created by the Brisbane Archdiocese to commemorate its forthcoming 150th anniversary. It provides a timeline and a short history of the archdiocese together with a collection of historical photographs. A bibliography is also included as is a list of celebratory events being planned.

BECOMING A CATHOLIC: There has been some interest in people becoming a Catholic and a new programme will begin in a couple of weeks. Please see Fr. Mick or the Parish Office to have your name included to be contacted or <http://www.adelaide.catholic.org.au/sites/OfficeforWorship/adult-catechumenate-rcia>
